Court Showdown On Integration To Come Today

Federal Judge to Rule in Legal Crisis Over Arkansas Schools

By UNITED PRESS

A federal court showdown ruling expected today in the explosive Little Rock integration controversy may demonstrate just how far the U. S. government will go to force a state to obey the desegregation mandate of the Supreme Court.

Federal District Judge Ronald N. Davies is scheduled to hand down a momentous decision in the most significant legal crisis over the race issue since the Supreme Court's desegregation rulings of 1954.

President Eisenhower and Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. conferred for 45 minutes in Washington this morning on what the federal government might do in the Little Rock crisis.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said Brownell brought the President up to date on Little Rock developments and discussed "various aspects of the law" relating to the situation. Hagerty said possible actions the government could take were discussed.

Eisenhower and Brownell, conferring as soon as the President returned to Washington from a Newport, R.I., vacation, also discussed the President's authority "as it affects the National Guard," Hagerty said.

Davies will rule on the Little Rock board of education's request submitted two days ago, to "suspend integration indefinitely" at Little Rock Central High School.

Board Makes Request

The board made its "crisis request" after Gov. Orval E. Faubus called out the National Guard Tuesday to prevent Negroes from enrolling in the school.

The decision will be handed down partially on the basis of an FBI report to Davies on "the facts" of who was responsible for "interference" with his two federal court orders that the school be integrated.

Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. Friday ordered the FBI to confer with Faubus' representatives on "certain evidence" the governor told President Eisenhower he would be glad to furnish and upon which he based his decision to call out the guard.

Faubus Stands Firm

Faubus, who has remained personally incommunicado since Wednesday, stood firm in his refusal to permit school integration. He continued to maintain the armed guard on the school and on his executive mansion.

The governor promised Eisenhower in a telegram that he would uphold the constitutions of Arkansas and the nation.

Brownell planned today to ask the President for a go-ahead on legal maneuvers to speed integration at Central High. He said he would show Eisenhower the FBI's report on the explosive situation in Little Rock.

Officials in Little Rock and Washington welcomed the week end break in school attendance, which they hoped would cool down tempers in the dispute.

The guard around Central High School in Little Rock was reduced today, although still another unit, from Morilton, Ark., was ordered to report for duty Monday.

The nine Negroes who first sought entrance at the school Tuesday did not show up at the school Friday. They will not appear in court today, but their written statements concerning the controversy will be entered in the record.

Negro Soldiers Can't Take White Wives to Texas

WASHINGTON (UP) — Negro members of the 2nd Armored Division who married white women in Germany in effect today have to make a choice between their wives or their outfit.

The Army said the Negro soldiers can't live with their white wives once the division is transferred to Texas.

"Each man concerned has to make his decision as to whether he wants to remain in the division or transfer out," the Army said. The 2nd Armored is swapping posts in November with the 4th Armored Division at Ft. Hood, Tex.

Texas has strict miscegenation laws against allowing Negroes and whites living as man and wife. The Army said it had advised affected personnel of the laws.

The Army's explanation came after Rep. Charles C. Diggs (D-Mich.) asked Army Secretary Wilbur M. Brucker to set aside the recommendation for the Negroes to transfer out of the 2nd Armored.

Diggs, one of three Negro members of the House, protested the Army's position in a telegram to Brucker.

AEC Will Fire Four More in Nuclear Tests

ANGEL'S PEAK, Nev. (UP)— The Atomic Energy Commission today rushed ahead with plans to fire four more nuclear devices before the end of this month and round out the summer test series with a total of 21 detonations.

The AEC Friday fired automic device "Wheeler," a "bonus baby" detonation with an estimated explosive yield equivalent to 5,000 tons of TNT. The shot was added to the regular schedule of tests and was designated the 17th blast of the series.

Of comparatively low intensity, "Wheeler" had about one-quarter of the strength of the atomic bombs dropped on Japan during World War II.

It was detonated from beneath a balloon suspended 500 feet above the Yucca Flat Proving Grounds, and the flash was visible in San Francisco, Los Angeles and Reno, Nev.

Boy Shoots, Kills Father With Shotgun

PITTSBURGH (UP)—A 10-year-old boy shot and killed his father in their home Friday night. He told police the father abused him and his mother.

The victim, Michael E. Chervenak Jr., 31, of the Brushton district, was killed with a blast from a 32-gauge shotgun fired point blank at his chest.

Police said the boy, Michael Thomas, and his mother, Mrs. Shirley Chervenak, 32, told them the father had abused them. The boy said the father threatened to beat the mother.

Police Insp. William Gilmore said there was evidence the boy had been beaten. He said there were welts on the boy's body.

Young Michael told police that when his father came home Friday night and threatened to beat his wife, he went upstairs, got the shotgun and came down and fired at his father. He then returned the gun to the place he took it from.

District Road Is Being Blacktopped

A stretch of Route 837 leading into Donora from Charleroi was being blacktopped today.

The road was under detour for four months during grading operations. It was opened to traffic last week.

RACIAL JUDGE — Federal District Judge Ronald N. Davies of Little Rock, Ark., may be asked to issue a federal injunction against Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas, ordering the governor not to interfere with racial integration at Little Rock's Central High school. An injunction would be a result of Faubus' use of National Guardsmen to prevent Negroes from entering the high school.

McGuire to Run As Independent In Charleroi

Charleroi Burgess James W. McGuire, who was defeated by Frank Cantoni in the Democratic primary last May 21, announced yesterday that he will run as an "independent" in the November general election.

McGuire, who is completing his third term as Charleroi burgess, lost by 118 votes to Cantoni in the primary race.

Fred Miller, Allenport mill safety director, is the Republican nominee.

McGuire said he decided to run again after "more than 100 Democrats and Republicans" urged him to do so.

"I want it understood that I am not going into the burgess fight to cut votes for either Cantoni or Miller," McGuire said. "I am running because as November nears more people are coming up to me each day and asking that I run again for the office of burgess."

Democrats Top Rostraver Twp.

Democrats outregistered the Republicans better than 12 to 1 in Rostraver Twp. during the special field registration on Wednesday.

By voting districts, the Democrats piled up these edges: 50-2 in Fellsburg; 42-7 in Pricedale and 17-0 in Concord.

In South Huntingdon Twp., 17 Democrats registered for the Nov. 5 general election to just four Republicans.

State Rests Case in Monongahela Slaying

The state rested its case yesterday in the murder trial of Mrs. Lena Trappin, 75, a Monongahela great-grandmother.

The defense will open its case Monday in Washington County Court.

Defense counsels were expected to base their case on a claim that no motive has been established for the slaying of Joseph Mancuso, 65, a Monongahela shoemaker.

The defense also indicated that it considers the evidence against Mrs. Trappin as circumstantial and that she was not able physically to strangle the victim.

The prosecution rested its case yesterday and the defense immediately asked for dismissal on the charges of lack of proof. Judge George T. Cummins refused the motion and recessed the trial until Monday morning.

A jury of eight women and four men yesterday listened to testimony by P. Rene Bedez, an FBI technician who was the state's last principal witness.

Bedez testified that samples of hair from the clothing of the victim matched that of Mrs. Trappin, a 195 pound naturalized native of Sicily. He also said hair samples found in the widow's bedroom matched that of Mancuso.

Bedez said his examination showed buttons found in the Trappin home were similar to buttons on Mancuso's clothing. Four buttons were missing from the victim's clothing and four buttons

Reds Warn U. S. to Keep Hands Off in Tense Middle East

By UNITED PRESS

Communists around the world warned the United States today to keep its hands off the Soviet-infiltrated Middle East.

Radio Moscow, quoting what it said was an article in the Red organ Pravda, said Russia's latest notes on the Middle East should be regarded as a "serious warning to those who plan attempts against peace and security."

The notes, delivered Tuesday to the United States, Britain and France, accused the Western Big Three of interfering in Arab affairs.

Accuses Henderson

The Red radio also accused U.S. diplomatic troubleshooter Loy W. Henderson of "organizing a plot" against Syria in Turkey, Jordan, Iraq and Lebanon.

In Cairo, the pro-government organ Al Nissa printed an interview with Red China's Premier Chou En-lai saying the United States will not dare act against Syria because of Communist support for the Arab state.

The French Communist organ Humanite and various fellow-traveling Paris publications assailed the United States for flying arms to Syria's non-Communist neighbors, saying that a new conflict in the Middle East might mushroom into World War III.

Makes Surprise Visit

Dispatches from the Middle East said Arabia's King Saud is arriving in Lebanon today on a surprise visit whose effect on the situation in the tense Middle East could not immediately be estimated.

An offer from Saud to guarantee Lebanon's independence undoubtedly would be welcomed by the tiny Arab nation, which recently has been threatened with "union" by its Syrian neighbors.

In Washington, President Eisenhower scheduled a meeting with Henderson and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles which is expected to produce a stern new warning to Russia and Syria against Communist penetration which might jeopardize the independence of the Mideast.

Hurricane Carrie Lashing Through South Atlantic

MIAMI (UP) — A blockbuster hurricane packing winds up to 100 miles an hour lashed through the South Atlantic today about 2,500 miles east-southeast of Miami.

"There is no immediate threat to any land areas," Bernie Moore, forecaster at the hurricane warning center here, said. "However, this storm is far enough out at sea that it has plenty of time to build up into a real big one."

The hurricane, labeled Carrie for the third tropical storm of the year, boiled up in the Atlantic Friday somewhere between Africa and the United States.

Winds at the center of the violent storm were estimated at 100 miles per hour over a small area near the center. Hurricane force winds extended outward about 75 miles in the "northern semicircle and 50 miles in the southern semicircle."

Gale winds roared out about 100 miles from the "eye" of the storm in all directions.

Moore said the storm was a "dangerous one." He said vessels in the area were warned to exercise extreme caution.

Los Angeles Alerted for Smog Invasion

LOS ANGELES (UP) — Smog was expected to hit downtown Los Angeles today in alert proportions for the first time this year because a near-alert attack settled over the city Friday.

The air pollution control district said Friday an alert might be called within the next 24 hours. When a first - stage alert is called motorists are advised to halt all unnecessary operation of automobiles and industrial firms are directed to cut down the emitting of air contaminating materials as much as possible.

The ozone content of the air—the factor blamed for creation of smog — reached a high of .30 parts per million parts of air Friday, a reading .20 parts below first stage alert level.

Workers in downtown office buildings suffered eye - watering and other irritating effects of the bluish haze. The smog even entered the courtroom where the Confidential magazine libel trial is being held, but the room was later cleared by air-conditioning equipment.

Father of Three In Gun Spree

PIQUA, O. (UP) — A 27-year-old father of three children went berserk early today after an all-night drinking party and fired 20 shotgun blasts in and outside of his home.

Police officers shot him down as he came running out of the house with his 17-month-old daughter Linda under one arm and a blazing shotgun in the other.

The father, Donald Young, was held in Piqua City Jail with ankle wounds. He was charged with wounding with intent to kill.

Patrolman LeRoy Steinke, 30, and Robert J. Ammon, a gas station attendant, working nearby, suffered minor wounds in the fray.

Fire Wipes Out Only Industry

GEORGETOWN, O. (UP) — A million-dollar fire wiped out this drought - stricken Southwestern Ohio village's only industry today.

The fire, visible for 20 miles, destroyed the P. Sullivan Shoe Co. factory. Flames shot 150 feet in the air.

Two nearby homes and a shed caught fire and 17 buildings were scorched and blistered by the heat. Exploding liquid cement and lacquer drums rocked the area.

Beck Claims AFL - CIO Forcing Will on Members

WASHINGTON (UP)—Teamster President Dave Beck, in an apparent reply to AFL-CIO clean-up demands, indirectly accused the AFL-CIO today of trying to impose its will on rank-and-file union members.

The outgoing head of the Teamster organization invoked the words of the late Samuel Gompers, pioneer labor leader, in discussing the centralized power of the AFL-CIO.

The AFL - CIO, has accused the Teamsters of being dominated by corrupt influences and named Beck and other top officials in calling for reform of the 1,400,000-member trucking union.

Beck told Teamster members to ask yourself if the father of the American Federation of Labor (Gompers) didn't foresee the day when attempts would be made to superimpose on the rank-and-file a rule from the top of a centralized organization."

AFL - CIO President George Meany has said that Gompers' policy of union self - government did not mean the AFL-CIO would tolerate corrupt leadership of member unions.

420 Now Idled By Dispute at Pittsburgh Steel

A strike called "illegal" by the company and "unauthorized" by the union today idled about 420 employes in the Monessen plant of the Pittsburgh Steel Co.

Affected were 340 employes in the blooming mill department and 80 in the open hearth.

The dispute erupted Thursday afternoon over work assignments in the blooming mill's billet yard section.

No picket lines have been set up at the plant, which employs about 5,000 workers.

Eugene Maurice, director of District 13, United Steelworkers (AFL-CIO), said the strike was "unauthorized." He said union leaders are trying to persuade the strikers to return to their jobs.

Carl A. Breuer, vice president-operations, today told The Daily Independent that the company would "not agree to a meeting on the issues in dispute until the strikers return to work."

13 Men Walk Out

Breuer said the strike in the blooming mill, which processes steel from the open hearth and then feeds it to other departments, has resulted in four open hearths being shut down, bringing the total idle to 420 workers.

The work stoppage started on the 4 to 12 p. m. shift in the 28-inch and 46-inch mills Thursday.

A crew of 13 men walked off their jobs and yesterday the entire work force of the blooming mill joined in the walkout.

Donold C. Duvall, vice president-industrial relations, said the work stoppage involved "the refusal on the part of certain employes to accept duties outlined by their supervisors."

Duvall said the employes "made demands on the company on how they would work and how they would not work."

'Violates' Contract

He further stated that the walkout was in "direct" violation of the company's three-year contract with the USW which set up grievance procedure to be followed in such cases.

Anthony Ortolona, Local 1229 president, has refused to comment on the work stoppage. When questioned by a reporter, all he would say was:

"I don't know what you're talking about."

When a reporter asked, "Aren't you the president of the local?" Ortolona replied:

"Sometimes I wonder."

He refused further comment.

Breuer said today it could not be determined how long the strike would have to last before the entire plant has to shut down.

He said it is having a bad effect on 'our customer relationship."

$2,000 in Purse Stolen from Cafe

PITTSBURGH (UP) — A purse containing $2,000 was stolen from a Pittsburgh cafe Friday night by three bar patrons.

Police said one of three men drinking at the bar of Ann Mulvehill's Lounge reached over and grabbed the purse, which had been lying behind the bar. He and his companions then fled.

Catholic School Has Class, but no Building

Rev. Philip A. Campbell, principal of the new Monongahela Valley Catholic High School, has no building yet, but he already has a freshman class of 125 students.

"We have added ninth grades at five parochial schools in the valley in order to have two classes move into the new high school building next term," Father Campbell explained.

The million dollar Catholic High School, located on the Coyle-Curtain Road in Carroll Twp., is now under construction.

"At the moment the work is ahead of schedule," Father Campbell reported. "It should be ready in time for the 1958-59 term."

The area has already been graded and footers laid.

When completed, the school will have 26 rooms. It will also contain a huge gymnasium.

"I'm not sure what the seating capacity of the gym will be," Father Campbell said, "but the playing floor will be the largest in the diocese."

A football field is also in the school's plans, he added.

Eventually, it is estimated that 200 students will be enrolled.

Father Campbell said girls attending the high school will wear carbon gray uniforms, with the school emblem on the jackets. The boys will wear regular clothes.

"A few of the girls have complained about the uniforms," the priest admitted. "But I'm sure most of the opposition stems from the fact that the idea is new to the district."

Father Campbell said that this year's enrollment was "about what we expected."

The new school's colors will be magenta and gold. Magenta, explained the priest, is a roman purple.

Redstone School 'Strike' Possible

Redstone High School officials faced the possibility of a student "strike" on Monday as a result of a ban against the use of automobiles by students.

School authorities declined to comment on rumors that the pupils will not report for classes Monday.

The ban was imposed at the beginning of the current school term in an effort to halt "drag racing" at noon, according to reports.

Direct County to Pay Legal Fees In Photo Ban

Three Westmoreland County jurists have filed an order in quarter-sessions court directing the county commissioners to pay attorney fees in connection with federal proceedings in the lengthy photo ban dispute.

Judges Richard D. Laird, Edward G. Bauer and John M. O'Connell signed the order which called for the payment of $2,100 in fees to attorneys Paul K. McCormick and H. Reginald Belden.

The order also directed the commissioners to pay $154.40 to George Geiger, official court reporter, for a transcript of the U. S. District Court proceedings.

McCormick and Belden represented the court in federal proceedings from Feb. 27 to Aug. 22 of this year.

The photo ban case originated in 1954 when the publishers of the two defendant newspapers, Tribune-Review Publishing Co. of Greensburg and the Pittsburgh Post Gazette, decided to make a test case of a photo ban imposed by Judge Bauer during the sentencing of John Wesley Wable, the convicted Turnpike killer.

After the newspapers violated the court order, the publishers, a reporter and three photographers were fined and sentenced to jail for contempt of court. The State Supreme Court set aside the jail sentences but did not disturb the fines imposed.

Last week in Pittsburgh Federal Judge Wallace Gourley upheld the county courts. Attorneys for the two newspapers announced following the decision they plan to carry the case to the Third Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia.

Lightning Bolt Kills Two Girls; 13 Are Injured

SWEETWATER, Tex. (UP)—A lightning bolt hurtled into the midst of a group of schoolgirls huddled under a tree for shelter Friday, killing two of them and injuring 13.

Policeman C. W. Henderson was driving to Reagan Junior High School to pick up his daughter when he saw the bolt crackle through the tree. The 15 girls waiting under the branches for a driving rainstorm to let up were thrown in every direction, he said.

Police Sgt. Floyd Smith, cruising near the school, said he rushed in the direction of the noise. When he got there, he said children "were lying on top of each other and scattered out under the tree."

The lightning killed Linda Condray, 14, Sweetwater, and Robbie Lee Mitchell, 14, of a nearby community. The hair was singed from the Condray girl's head.

Church Membership 'Stability' Is Studied

OBERLIN, Ohio (UP)— The casual way in which many American Protestants shift allegiance from one denomination to another was depicted today as a major force for church unity.

The "stability" of church membership in the United States is being studied by a section of the Oberlin conference on church unity. A section report said that in a typical U.S. congregation, from 30 to 50 per cent of the members may be "transfers" from some other denomination.

Dr. Rosewell P. Barnes, associate general secretary of the National Council of Churches and a conference section leader, said one fifth of America's families change residences each year. When a church-going family settles in a new neighborhood, he said, "many considerations besides previous denominational loyalties enter into a choice of a new local church affiliation."

He said a family may choose a church on the basis of "convenience of access, social congenialty of the congregation, the quality of the religious education program, the youth program, or the popularity of the minister."

This constant shifting around of Baptists, Methodists, Lutherans, Episcopalians, and other Protestants "tends to de-emphasize denominational differences and smooth the path toward Christian unity," Barnes said.

Another conference section reported in a preliminary report that many suburban churches are in danger of becoming "exclusive clubs" in which membership is effectively restricted to white families of middle class economic brackets.

Churches Must Conform

It said churches have tended to accept and conform to the "racial and economic stratification" of American neighborhoods, rather than bear witness in their own life to the "universality" of Christian brotherhood.

The spirit of candid self criticism by the churches, a marked feature of the Oberlin conference, also was reflected in Friday night's principal address by Dr. Joseph Sittler, professor of theology at the University of Chicago and chairman of a World Council of Churches commission on worship.

Pennsylvania Girl Is Tied for Top Talent

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UP)—A courageous blonde girl who overcame a false start in a difficult operatic solo and a baton twirling college graduate studying for her doctor of philosophy degree took top talent honors Friday night in the final preliminary competition rounds of the Miss America pageant.

Blonde Miss Oregon, 19-year-old Judith Faye Hansen of Astoria, Ore., plunged to despair at her own mistake when she started on the wrong note of her lyric soprano rendition of "Si, Mi Chiamano Mimi" from La Boheme, had the heart and the voice to tie Miss Pennsylvania for first place in the talent division.

Miss Pennsylvania, blonde Jennie Rebecca Blatchford, of Hollidaysburg, Pa , the oldest competitor at 23 and holder of a bachelor of science and master of arts degrees from Northwestern University, tied with a Northwest Pacific girl in the talent division with a lightning fast jazz baton twirling exhibition which brought steady cheers from the crowd of 8,400 spectators in Convention Hall.

Miss North Carolina, brunette Elaine Herndon of Durham, N.C., the first brunette to win a division title, won the swim suit trophy. Her trim figure, 5 feet, 5½ inches tall, 118 pounds and 35-23½-35 was set off in a ribbed white faile swim suit with a pleated bodice.

The drama of the night was the recovery of Miss Oregon from her bad start in her solo to set up the first tie in 12 years. her stopping the music, her simple announcement to the audience "I'm sorry. We made some changes this afternoon"

Then, with a voice that she hopes some day will take her to the Metropolitan, the stately miss, a student at Bethany College, soared through the opera number and stepped from the stage with a slight sag to her shoulders at what she anticipated was defeat.

For the time being, Father Campbell has his office at St. Anthony Church in Monongahela. When the new building is ready, he will move there.

Classes at the high school will be taught by sisters from five different communities.

The U. S. Must Win This Showdown

THE "TRUCE" which is reported to prevail at Little Rock, Ark., at this writing should be used, not to find ways of avoiding a showdown between the Governor of Arkansas and the federal district court, but to make perfectly certain that the United States government wins the showdown.

For if Governor Faubus succeeds in using the National Guard, which is sustained in large part by federal funds, to prevent the Little Rock school board from carrying out the orders of the federal court, similar defiance will spread rapidly all over the South. Even in states where racial integration is proceeding satisfactorily in accordance with the Supreme Court decision, the nullification movement will take on new life. The White Citizens Councils and ther politician friends will make the most of Governor Faubus' example.

President Eisenhower cannot let this happen. And if we read correctly the telegram which he sent to Governor Faubus, the President does not mean to let it happen.

* * *

THE LITTLE ROCK situation is different in a very important respect from the other episodes which have arisen out of resistance to integration of Negro children into formerly all-white schools. The National Guard has been used both in Kentucky and Tennessee, but in all cases it was used to restore and preserve order after violence had occurred.

Governor Faubus, however, is using the Guard, not to restore and preserve order, but to keep Negro children from entering the Central High School as they were entitled to on the specific order of Judge Davies of the U. S. district court.

This is clearly a misuse of the National Guard, and it puts Governor Faubus in the awkward position of deliberately and wilfully challenging the President of the United States to carry out the solemn obligation of his oath —"to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

We can imagine that some good legal minds are at work trying to find ways and means of avoiding a collision. We hope they succeed — but not at the sacrifice of the great principles which are involved.

As we see it, the situation at Little Rock can be resolved in only one way so far as the government and the people of the United States are concerned. Governor Faubus must be persuaded if possible, but compelled if necessary, to cease his patently illegal use of the National Guard. If the Guard has to be employed in the segregation controversy, in Little Rock or elsewhere, it must be employed only on the side of the law and not against the law.

Good Examples

IN HIS REMARKS to Monessen's public school teachers as the new term opened this week, Superintendent Pallone laid stress on the need for teachers to set good personal examples for their students.

Even in such matters as manners and speech and grooming, Dr. Pallone said, the teacher must be a worthy model for the pupil.

The point is such an obvious one, it might seem strange that Dr. Pallone should feel the necessity of mentioning it. A teacher, it seems to us, who is not conscious of the need to set a good example can hardly be regarded as a competent teacher. But if Dr. Pallone has reason to stress the point, it is well that he did, and it will be well if those teachers whom the shoe fits, put it on promptly.

It would be a good thing, moreover, for all adults to be more conscious of the impressions which they make on young people who are in the process of developing lifetime habits of thought and bearing. It is not just their teachers from whom children tend to borrow habits. Whether you are a public official, a cop on the corner, a storekeeper, a professional person or a millworker, the way you speak and dress and conduct yourself can be a good or a poor example for countless young people who know you or see you.

Children come into the world naked and innocent. They tend to develop pretty much in accord with the examples that are set for them, in school and out.

Republican State Chairman George I. Bloom thinks the Secretary of Highways should be a man who has had some expetience in road construction. Now there's a novel idea for you!

When you read the stories of water shortages all over the East, be thankful for our good old Monongahela River. Its water may not be very good, but at least it's wet.

Merry-Go-Round—

Rumor of U. S. Missile Test False

(Editor's Note: While Drew Pearson is touring the Mediterranean, his column is written by his junior partner.)

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The report that America beat Russia into the air with a successful intercontinental ballistics missile, supposedly fired 2,400 miles over the Atlantic, is unfortunately mistaken.

The Air Force has tested only one Atlas, which began wobbling in flight and was destroyed by a ground safety officer before it shot out of sight. Our only other ICBM, the Titan, is still under construction in Denver. It probably won't be ready for testing until the first of next year.

Strictly speaking, the Air Force developed the first intercontinental missile a year ago. This was the subsonic Snark, a winged missile, which can be shot down by jet fighters and is already considered obsolete.

Each experimental Atlas is known inside the Air Force by its number. No. 2 is now mounted in its launching stand at Cape Canaveral, Fla., waiting to be fired. The trigger date, of course, is top secret.

What might have been mistaken for a successful Atlas was the X-17, a three-stage missile that the Air Force has been using to blaze trails for the Atlas along the edge of space. Four stories tall, the X-17 has been fired to tremendous heights to duplicate conditions the Atlas will encounter.

Meanwhile, the Russians definitely are known to be testing multiple-stage missiles in the Arctic. These missiles are specially designed to be launched in frigid climates — ominous news — since the polar route is the shortest distance to American targets. Russia has at least 20 major bases, each with a string of 20 or more launching sites, scattered along her northern fringes.

Nickerson Story

Inside story can now be told of how the Army's heavy-handed Inspector General, Lt. Gen. David Ogden, almost muffed the investigation of Col. John Nickerson.

Ogden started out to find how Drew Pearson got a memo containing classified information on guided missiles. Before Ogden realized it, he had stirred up the most controversial court-martial since Gen. Billy Mitchell was drummed out of the Army for championing air power.

The mysterious memo writer turned out to be a young West Pointer, Colonel Nickerson, who was formally charged with giving away military secrets.

His commanding officer, Maj. Gen. John Medaris of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency, Huntsville, Ala., became panicky and started calling the Pentagon to protect himself. At one point, Lt. Gen. Thomas Hickey, Third Army commander, threatened to court-martial Medaris if he didn't stop meddling in the case. Here are the backstage details:

Nickerson's memo, blistering Secretary of Defense Wilson for limiting Army missiles to 200 miles, somehow fell into Drew Pearson's hands. He submitted it to the Pentagon and asked for: (1) the Air Force's side of the controversy and (2) security advice.

Brucker Gets Sore

Instead of replying, Secretary of Defense Wilson confiscated the memo and turned it over to Deputy Secretary Reuben Robertson. It lay on Robertson's desk for 10 days before the Army got wind of it.

Then Secretary of the Army Wilbur Brucker stormed into Robertson's office and demanded to know why he hadn't been consulted. He angrily accused Robertson of playing footsie with the rival Air Force. Brucker also cussed out Pearson.

Before Brucker left, he took custody of the memo and immediately ordered the Inspector General to find out who leaked to Pearson. The trail pointed to Huntsville, Ala., so General Ogden personally flew there. He threatened and bullied until he discovered who wrote the memo.

By this time, Ogden had dug up enough evidence to warrant a court-martial. But he had used such roughshod methods to uncover what he thought was a simple news leak that he had violated Colonel Nickerson's legal rights.

He also had not taken formal statements nor advised witnesses of their rights. As a result, the court-martial almost blew up before it got off the ground.

Public Duty and Private Pleasure

By WALTER LIPPMANN

The true measure of what was and was not done in this session of Congress cannot be found on a score card of the President's recommendations set against the actions of Congress. We must, I think, look for the true measure, not in the text of laws enacted and in money authorized or appropriated but, in terms of the great and continuing issues with which the country must deal. Here one bright and hopeful thing happened in the most difficult and politically the most dangerous of our domestic problems — that of the rise of the Negro population to civic equality.

Mr. Lippmann

The civil rights bill which was actually passed is most significant. This is not because it will bring about a sudden enfranchisement of qualified Negroes. It is significant because for the first time, and at long last, we have tangible reason to believe that an accommodation on civil rights can be brought about with Southern leaders participating in it.

Until now, all attempts to influence race relations from Washington have been in substance attempts to impose — always in vain — Northern views on the united resistance of the South. The parts played by Sen. Lyndon Johnson and Speaker Rayburn in working out a compromise bill, the decision not to filibuster taken by Sen. Russell and all but one of his Southern colleagues, mark a break-through towards cooperation and consent, the first since the Civil War.

Caution Needed

Let us hope that the President will take care that the Department of Justice does not, with its eyes on the election of 1958, bulldoze its way forward as if nothing new had happened. The principle of proceeding with the advice and consent of the liberal South ought to govern the administration both of the voting rights legislation and of the school integration decision. The administration of these laws is not automatic and self-evident. It demands what we do not yet have — a wise and considered policy, that is to say a policy designed to accomplish the maximum that is possible as rapidly as possible, with the liberal South consenting. It will not be possible to secure and protect voting rights, much less to integrate the public schools, against the determined resistance of whole Southern communities.

The 1957 session of Congress will long be remembered for its having shown the way forward, how the federal government can proceed with civil rights. For the rest, both at home and abroad, the country has not only been badly led, it has been misled. It has been misled by the weakness of the President and the partisanship of Congress.

The country has been left with the impression, which will dominate almost every great problem, that if we could cut expenditures by a few more billion dollars, it would be possible to reduce the income tax. This is a dangerous untruth to propagate at this time. Yet both parties are propagating it. The Democrats are said to be planning to pass a tax cut in the next session. The President, who knows that it is wrong to cut taxes when there is such a big inflation, has, nevertheless, encouraged the notion that with a little more budgetary economy, he too might favor tax reductions.

Duty Before Pleasure

What the country needs to hear from the President is not softness about private self-indulgence but a stern and austere reminder that our public responsibilities must come ahead of our private pleasures.

There is no prospect now in sight of an agreement to slow down the race of armaments. There is, on the contrary, much evidence that the race is swifter. It is no use, then, to tell our people that we can stabilize the military budget at $38,000,000,000.

It is impossible for the country to taper off and to cry quits in providing economic aid to the under-developed countries. We shall not in our time see the end of the need for such aid, and it cannot be the policy of the United States to resign from Asia and Africa. It is no use, then, to go towards the election of 1958 with a spreading feeling among politicians that if they could abolish foreign aid, there would be a big enough surplus to justify a tax reduction.

Nor can we escape the consequences of the fact that our population is increasing at a prodigious rate — and that almost every necessary public facility is over-burdened. This is true of the public schools, the colleges and the universities, where as the school population rises, the quality of education is deteriorating. The school problem is all the more poignant because, now that the law of the land calls for integrated schools, money will have to be found to replace the generally inferior Negro schools.

In the great urban conglomeration much new public money, not all of it of course federal money, will have to be spent on parks and recreation facilities, and on hospitals, highways, housing, and communications.

We are running counter to the facts of our military and diplomatic position in the world, and of the expansion of our people at home, when we allow politicians to beguile us with talk about tax cuts. What we should be hearing from Washington, and talking about ourselves, is not tax cuts, now how to be able to buy on borrowed money more and more longer and wider and faster motor cars, but how to meet our responsibilities and to do our duty.

September Is Full of Late-summer Magic

By JOHN H. DAY

Now here again is September, on stage to supervise the dusty passing of another summer and the colorful beginning of another fall. The seventh month of the old Roman year is now our ninth month, still keeping its 30 days of late-summer magic to lure countrymen everywhere onto enchanted rural byways. The hunting moon of the Indians, the barley month of the old Anglo-Saxons, September is really a clever dissembler, hiding hints of prophecy of rugged things to come behind gorgeous sunlit interludes as rare as any day in June.

September means many things to many people. The schoolboy knows that when Labor Day is past his life of tedium begins again. So too in the world of business. Now the holiday is over and there are quotas to be filled. Farm folk gird now for the harvest. Before long the sun will cross the quinoctial line and the lengthening nights will signal the sure beginning of autumn.

To the countryman September holds just as many outdoor pleasures as any other month in the wayside calendar. To be sure the weedy roadside jungles are now a "sight" and the shriven streams, some bone-dry, are poor excuses for the joyous, boisterous torrents of April. There's no doubt about it that summer's a slattern at every fence and a little frost is sometimes helpful to make the balance right.

Hawks Soar

But watch the big hawks soaring in the September updrafts. They know what the peaceful, contented September days are for. High overhead they float, sometimes for hours, describing gigantic circles without the apparent quivering of a feather. Up and up and up they go, until they are lost from sight, riding the air currents with a lazy ease that is relaxing just to watch.

Down in the tangled old-fields the countryman renews acquaintance with the big spiders who hang their orb webs among the rank September weeds. The Shamrock spider and the fat-bodied bright yellow and black "Argiope" are common in every field. While hunting out a basketful of elderberries in a swampy area one recent stifling day I saw these hungry fellows everywhere, waiting patiently for fly, or bee, or grasshopper to blunder into the sticky web.

You can have a lot of fun with the big yellow spiders. Poke them with your finger and they will start the web to vibrating, shaking it so vigorously that they become an indistinct blur. These big spiders are all females. Later in the season they will weave the pear-shaped egg sac, which they will cram with perhaps a thousand eggs and tie securely to a shrub or sturdy weed, where it will pass the winter safely. But only a very few of the spiderlings will survive the cannibalistic warfare which goes on in that sac.

September is also the month of wood silence. It is not strictly silence, but there is no song, no one speaks, and the wind is not heard in the branches. But there is a nameless something in the air, an inaudible noise or an audible stillness of which you become conscious if you listen for it. It is a unison of fine sounds, some of which you can separate from the rest.

Assorted Sounds

There are beats of distant crickets, few and faint, and a hum as of tiny wings. Now an insect passes near, leaving a buzz behind him for only a second. Then a frog in a nearby marsh lets slip a quick, gulping syllable. Once a small bird's wings are heard, just heard and no more. Far overhead a goldfinch passes, with rhythmic calls accenting each loop of his flight.

September is a sort of half-way month, but it is also the golden month and the month of maturity. The month of the heaped basket and the garnered sheaf. It is a month of contrasts — of burning days and cool twilights, of big flaming flowers and delicate lacy cobwebs, of rough stubbles and dewy lawns. It has warmth, depth and color. And its birthstone, the sapphire, is as deep and pure in its blue depths as the blue vault above on a perfect September day when not a cloud obscures the tranquil sky.

White House Unready For Arkansas Crisis

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Eisenhower administration was not ready for the Arkansas school integration emergency.

The boss left for a Rhode Island vacation. White House staff chief Sherman Adams is off to a New Hampshire speaking engagement. Democrats will be asking: Who was keeping the store?

Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr., was on the job Thursday but without any immediate strategy or policy to pursue. The battle of headlines had been favoring Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus who doubtless planned it that way.

Eisenhower's vacation began at a lively pace. By telephone, he was prodding the Justice Department for action. There was a feeling around town that Brownell was stalling for time or a policy inspiration.

Stalling Looked Good

Events in Little Rock, Ark., made a stalling strategy look pretty good. The Negro students against whom Faubus imposed a National Guard lockout made no attempt Thursday to enter Central High School. That diverted a lot of heat from everyone, especially Brownell.

If the Justice Department actually was stalling or, as is likely, had no plans prepared for such an emergency, it must act soon. Something must give somewhere if the Eisenhower administration is to obtain for the Republican Party maximum political advantage from its overall effort in behalf of Negro voters.

This Arkansas dispute over the enrollment of a few Negro children in a large white secondary school is not directly connected with the Eisenhower civil rights bill recently limited by Congress to voting rights. The President has not yet signed that bill, although he will do so shortly.

In Easier Position

Even so, Eisenhower probably is in an easier position today with respect to Arkansas developments than he would have been if Congress has passed his civil rights bill as he proposed it. Before the Senate began rejecting major portions of that legislation, the language very definitely committed the President to use federal troops in support of any civil right whatever.

Committed is precisely what it did, although the administration would not concede that to be a fact. The civil rights bill was the President's personal project, however, even though he said he did not understand some of it.

The bill was submitted by Eisenhower's attorney general to the Congress. And written into it by administration direction was a specific authorization for the use of the land and sea forces against whomsoever denied a civil right. Little Rock is remote from the sea. Perhaps, however, the battle of Central High School between the Arkansas National Guard and the U.S. Army was narrowly averted.

Today's Sports Parade—

'Bitsey' Grant Still Shows Class at 46

By OSCAR FRALEY

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UP) — The little man bounced over the court like a rubber ball, a smile of sheer enjoyment on his face and the fabled touch of 25 years ago still in his racket.

"Look at him," marveled a bystander. "He ought to be in the big tournament."

Byron (Bitsy) Grant was, instead, playing in defense of his senior championship during the nationals at Forest Hills. But nearing 46, the five-foot, five-inch "Atlanta Atom" still showed the class which made him a storied giant-killer in the early 1930s.

There were more people watching him in the comparative anonymity of the grandstand court than there were watching the main tournament in the famed center court.

Full Of Nobodies

For this edition of the U.S. Amateur tennis championship was stocked with a full supply of nobodies — highlighting the theory that, in almost any sport you can name today, the "super stars" of the past have faded practically out of sight.

Consider golf, as an example. It has had a long line of fabulous fairway performers: Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen, Byron Nelson, Ben Hogan, Sam Snead and Jimmy Demaret. But the likes of Hogan, Snead and Demaret are fast passing over the horizon and golf has nobody to take their place.

Sure, there are young players. But they are cloaked in obscurity. Gene Littler, one of the best, can walk down the street and nobody knows him. How many professional golf officials can tell you, let's say, how old Ken Venturi is? None of them can.

Pro football once had such flaming figures as Don Hutson, Sid Luckman and the fabulous Bronko Nagurski. Certainly there are fine players today. But the top pro last year was Frank Gifford of the Giants. Unless you are a dyed-in-the-worsted football buff I doubt whether you know he played for Southern California or would know him in person if you fell over him.

Sad Days For Boxing

Boxing has come on admittedly sad days. The champion of them all is Floyd Patterson, who in some distant future may rank with the top ones. But at the moment he is the kind that a Jack Dempsey or a Joe Louis, in their prime, would have eaten for breakfast.

Baseball has a couple of potentials in Mickey Mantle and Willie Mays. But this was a game which in the old days had a glamorous dozen or more in action at one time. What we're talking about is the super-star, remember, the player who was a household byword and whose appearance in public caused a mob scene from coast-to-coast.

"I can't explain why it is," said Bitsy, the giant killer who cut down such super-stars as Ellsworth Vines, Don Budge and Gottfried von Cramm. "But I think one of the big things is that the athletes don't seem to have fun at their games these days. They're too serious and they don't know how to relax."

As he said it, you weren't surprised to hear thunder in the distance. It was, you knew, raucous agreement from some distant Valhalla by a long line of superstars ranging from John L. Sullivan to Babe Ruth.

Jr. High Gridders 'Working'

Monessen Junior High football coach Al Romasco and his assistant Joe Gladys have the largest squad to report here in years "going at it strong" at Ninth Street Park.

"It'll take a little time to weed out the boys with such a large squad reporting," Romasco stated.

He has only two veterans from the '56 team with which to work. They are Dave Malino and David Kiefer. Last year's team posted a 3-2 record.

One thing in Romasco's favor is the fact that a great number of the candidates reporting this season have had experience as Midget Leaguers.

Lack of size seems to be the biggest drawback for some of the boys but none lack the essential "spunk" which is a greater asset than the "beef".

The locals open their season with Brownsville on Wednesday Sept. 25 and close on Oct. 30 with Canonsburg after meeting Donora, Monongahela and Charleroi in between the opener and the finale.

The catch weighed 42 pounds and measured 6 feet, 10 inches. It was landed from a boat named Rave, piloted by Captain Roy Shand.

Plans Completed for Midget Loop Opener

Monessen's Midget Football League completed plans last night for the opening of the 1957 season at Memorial Stadium next Tuesday.

The initial twin bill will send Frank-Lin against Lincoln at 7:15 and Vocational against Jefferson in the nightcap.

League officials met last night at the Ravens Club to go over details for the seventh annual season. It was reported that the Monessen High School band will march next Tuesday as an added attraction.

The league spent most of the night with financial problems. A transfer of $1,000 from the general fund to the building fund was authorized.

This additional money is needed to complete the concession stand on the student side of the stadium.

The league previously invested almost $100 in new or reconditioned equipment.

Two New Stands

The concession committee reported that arrangements have been made to serve customers this season from the two newstands. A variety of concessions will be offered.

This afternoon at 3 o'clock, players from all Midget League teams will be examined by Dr. M. W. Heatter who is again donating his services.

The league will again ask city organizations to assist in promoting games this season.

Vice-president Stephen Pfeister is in charge of these arrangements. He plans to call on the following organizations to help on these dates:

Sept. 10 — Ravens Club; Sept. 17 — Eagles and Chamber of Commerce; Sept. 4 — Kiwanis and Rotary; Oct. 1 — American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars; Oct. 8 — Elks and Knights of Columbus; Oct. 15 — No. 1 and No. 2 Fire Companies; Oct. 22 — Lions Club.

"Much of the success of our league in the past may be attributed to the fine cooperation we've received from these organizations," Pfeister stated. "We are hoping that they will assist us again this year by providing members to manage games on their respective nights."

Painters Needed At Stadium Here

Help! The Monessen Midget League is seeking volunteer workers to assist with the painting of the interior of the new concession stands at Monessen High School stadium. Some workers will be on hand today and tomorrow and would appreciate the assistance of anyone to help with the work.

German Tracker Tops U. S.' Best

PARIS (UP)—Manfred Germar, a young, fair-haired German, threatened America's long-standing dominance of sprinting today.

Germar upset stubby little Ira Murchison, one of Uncle Sam's best, Friday in the 100-meter final of the World University Games. His time of 10.5 seconds, while well off the world record of 10.1 and his own European record of 10.2, was noteworthy because a strong headwind and a track soggy from rain.

Germar, a relative newcomer to big-time track, has improved all year and now seems ready to challenge any sprinter in the world at any distance up to 200 yards. Murchison, from Western Michigan College, is perhaps the fastest starter in the game but Germar still beat him by one yard. Muchison's time was 10.6.

St. Leonard's Bowling League Action Opens

Greyhound '57 Grid Opener Week Away

Other Big 5 Entries, Bellmar Lift Lid Next Friday, Leopards Saturday

Monessen High School's 1957 football season opener is just a week away with the initial kickoff of the new season set for next Saturday night at Windber High School's Stadium near Johnstown.

All other Big Five schools will open their seasons next Friday night as will local eleven Bellmar. Rostraver, other District Class A team in addition to Bellmar will lift the lid on the new season next Friday night.

Games involving Mon Valley Conference schools, reduced to five this season by the omission of Redstone, include the Oliver at Charleroi game, the North Catholic at Donora contest, a Snowden Township clash with Monongahela and a Brownsville at Munhall encounter.

Bellmar travels to Perryopolis Friday night to battle Don Mains' Perry-Lower Tyrone squad in a Friday battle.

Rostraver will journey to Ellsworth for a Saturday contest as King Football takes over the valley sports scene in earnest.

Eyes on Redstone

Another game holding valley interest is the Johnstown at Redstone tilt. First of all, valley sports eyes will be on the Blackhawks following their omission from the MVL set-up this season and secondly, Monessen has the Johnnies carded for later in the season and will be anxious to see how Johnstown fares against Redstone as a barometer for the locals' meeting with Coach Dave Hart's lads. The Hartmen appear here on Oct. 25.

Meanwhile, around the local grid camps, Coaches Armand Niccolai, of the 'Hounds, Bap Manzini of the Bellmar team and Wade Bender of the Rostraver squads are rapidly rounding their squads into shape.

Locally, Niccolai planned a scrimmage for this morning which he hopes will settle the starting lineup question.

So far its been Dennis O'Toole and Paul Tobacco at the end posts with George Guibourdanche and Bob Walters close behind.

Tackle posts have been in the hands of Ed Allen and Bobo Aldridge with Charles Chester giving them a battle.

Bob Pauline, Terry Throop and Vince Pascarella are waging a battle royal for the guard posts, while Tom Churan seems to have the center post cinched to complete the starting line although other candidates could dislodge some of the above before next Saturday.

In the backfield it has been mostly Dan Barton and Carl Payne at the quarterback slot, Jimmy Lewitsky, Joe Karbowsky and Ken Bronson at the halfback post and Andy Corallo giving Cary Rattay a run for the fullback position.

"We'll know much better after today's scrimmage," Niccolai stated.

Mon Valley League Swings into Action

Monessen Villa Nova copped a 2-1 win over Monessen Myfords in Mon Valley League Duckpin League action on opening night last night.

Top scorers in the 18-team league last night were Art Palm, 184-480, Mike Adamio 209-476 for Villa Nova and Bernie Singel, 171-480 and Larry Evancho 223-464 for Myfords.

In a Mon Valley Duckpin League tilt at the North Belle Vernon alleys, the North Belle Vernon team topped Kane's Rest of Donora, 2-1.

Leading the scoring were W. Osleger with a 230 and B. Johnston with a 216 for Donora, W. Titler with a 220 and M. Renkey with a 217 for North Belle Vernon.

Bap Manzini, football coach at Bellmar High School and Wade Bender grid mentor at Rostraver, will address the St. Sebastian Holy Name Society in Belle Vernon tomorrow morning.

The two local coaches will give the HNS members the "lowdown" on what to expect from the respective football teams this season.

They will be featured on a Communion Breakfast program which will follow the 9 o'clock mass to be attended in a body by the Holy Name Society, HNS Secretary Jim Kehr announced.

Title Race On At South Park

There hasn't been much change in the top standing of the Pittsburgh Racing Association, but Dick Linder, running second to Herb Scott, will once again try to narrow the gap in tonight's seven-event speed program at South Park which gets under way at 8:30 o'clock.

Double points will be riding on the 50-lap feature and preliminary races.

Scott holds a 310-point lead over Linder — 1,919 to 1,609.

The stock cars also will be running tonight at Canfield, O., in a nine-event program, which also gets under way at 8:30 o'clock.

Also on Sunday, the micro-midgets, with small boys in the cockpits, will compete in a seven-event program at Uniontown Asphalt Speedway, with the first event scheduled for 2:15 o'clock. Trophies will be awarded the boys.

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF

Concentration Loss

Here's one of golf's more frequent complaints: "I was going along great until . . . " The "until" is usually followed with a description of a missed shot that led to a bad hole, with the bad hole leading to a series of bad holes.

The fault here lies, I think, in allowing tension to build up as you go along from hole to hole. The possibility of a good score for the round keeps looming larger and larger — until your thoughts are scrambled. You hit one shot and begin thinking immediately about the next one. First thing you know, you tighten up. Then comes the bad shot, the bad hole, and the run of bad holes.

The best way to avoid this is to take it easy between shots. After you hit your drive, think of something else besides your game and score, until it's your turn to shoot. Talk to your playing companions. Relax.

Then when it comes your turn to shoot, start concentrating on the task at hand and give it your best effort.

Kline Cops Fifth Straight Win As Pirates Edge Phillies, 3-2

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Righthander Ron Kline won his fifth consecutive game Friday night as the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Philadelphia Phils, 3-2.

Hank Foiles slammed a bases empty homer with two out in the sixth inning to break a 2-2 tie.

Kline, with a 7-15 record, has won every game in which he has started since Danny Murtaugh took over as manager. Kline credited his recent success to two factors: he practically has given up the knuckle ball in favor of straight pitching, and Murtaugh's policy of not using him in the bullpen for relief duty gives the big righthander more rest between starts.

Foiles' game-winning blow in Friday's contest came off southpaw Harvey Haddix who kept his team in competition with a two-run triple that tied the score at 2-2 in the fifth. Haddix, yielding seven hits, experienced his 11th defeat against 10 wins.

The Pirates meet Philadelphia this afternoon in the second game of the four-game series. Philadelphia rookie Jack Sanford (17-5) will pitch against Art Swanson (2-2) or R. G. Smith (0-3).

Pitcher Tommy Qualters, 22, McKeesport, Pa., recalled from the Miami farm club of the Philadelphia Phillies, was scheduled to join the team in Pittsburgh today.

Qualters is expected to be used mainly in relief roles as a substitute for Bob Miller, who has a broken right wrist.

Bill Sarni Very Happy Despite Shortened Career

NEW YORK (UP)—Talk about slumps, Bill Sarni of the Giants hasn't gotten a single hit this season but he sull considers himself the happiest guy alive.

Sarni's active major league career ended abruptly when he suffered a heart attack last Feb. 25 during the club's first day of spring training at Phoenix, Ariz. The 29-year-old ex-catcher convalesced at his St. Louis home until Aug. 21 when he rejoined the Giants as a coach.

"Some people may feel sorry for me," offered the good-looking, dark-haired Sarni. "But I consider myself the luckiest guy in the world just being around the boys again and getting a chance to remain in baseball."

Sarni, who figured to be the Giants' first-string catcher this year, glanced at the catcher's mitt in his locker and smiled wryly.

"All I ever use it for now is a little easy toss," he said. "I've thought about catching again but I came to realize there were two important factors to be considered.

"First, I have a responsibility to my family, my wife and my little boy and girl.

"Second, who would sign me to play? They'd be taking a big chance. The Giants have been wonderful to me. After all, I was a stranger to them and they had no real obligation to give me a job as coach."

Parker to Guide Steelers Against Former Eleven

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UP)—Coach Buddy Parker will direct the Pittsburgh Steelers in an exhibition contest here Sunday against the Detroit Lions, the team he managed for the past six seasons.

The Steelers were expected to field the same starting lineup that saw action in the Labor Day contest against the Philadelphia Eagles, with two exceptions. Ray Matthews, who had a pulled muscle during the Philadelphia tilt, is scheduled to return at left end and Rookie Dick Hughes probably will get a chance at left halfback.

In pre-season games played by the two National Football League teams thus far, Detroit has the superior record with three wins and no defeats. Pittsburgh lost to Chicago, 24-7, and Cleveland, 28-13 while defeating Philadelphia, 17-12. Detroit defeated Cleveland, 20-10, Philadelphia, 34-27, and Washington, 35-14.

Western Pennsylvania starters in the Detroit lineup include halfback Gene Gedman, Duquesne, linebacker Joe Schmidt, who starred at the University of Pittsburgh and fullback Leon Hart, Turtle Creek.

Saxton Retires After TKO Loss

WASHINGTON (UP) — Joe Miceli of Brooklyn claimed the right to a shot at the welterweight crown today because he had beaten exchampion Johnny Saxton into retirement.

Saxton, 27, announced his retirement after suffering a fourth-round technical knockout in the TV fight with Miceli before 1,600 at the New Capitol Arena. The exchamp from New York was attempting a comeback.

Saxton, apparently "washed up," was on the canvas five times although Referee Charley Reynolds designated only two trips as official knockdowns. They were in the first and third rounds.

"I sent him into retirement," said 26-year-old Miceli. "That was something (champion) Carmen Basilio couldn't do. I've earned a shot at Basilio, or if Basilio wins Ray Robinson's middleweight crown, I should be high in the tourney for Basilio's vacant title."

New Lambert Trophy For Small Colleges

NEW YORK (UP)—Victory and Henry Lambert, New York jewelers who established the Lambert Trophy in 1936 for the Eastern college football champion, announced today that a new award, the Lambert Cup, will be presented annually to the Eastern small college champion.

The Lambert Trophy, won last year by Syracuse, will continue to be presented to the major college champion. Almost 100 small colleges will be eligible for the new award.

'Magic Number' Drops to 14 Games

By UNITED PRESS

The "magic number" for the Milwaukee Braves to clinch the National League pennant dropped from 15 to 14 today despite their third straight defeat.

While the Braves were losing to Chicago, the second-place St. Louis Cardinals also were losing to Cincinnati. That means that the Braves now can clinch the flag by winning 14 of their remaining 20 games even if the second-place Cardinals win all their remaining games.

The New York Yankees' "magic number" in the American League stayed at 16 as they lost and the second-place White Sox won.

1957 Proving 'Year of Reluctant Champions' in Major League Races

By FRED DOWN

Major league baseball historians already are calling 1957 "the year of the reluctant champs."

Everybody "knows" the New York Yankees and Milwaukee Braves "can't" be overtaken but the two front-runners seem determined to prove figures can lie. With the pennants their's for the taking, the Yankees have lost six of nine games and the Braves have dropped three straight.

The Chicago White Sox made the Yankees "pay" Friday night when they whipped the Kansas City Athletics, 4-3, after the world champs dropped a 4-3 decision to the Washington Senators. The White Sox' victory, achieved by a ninth-inning homer by pitcher Dixie Howell cut the Yankees' lead to 4½ games.

Cubs Dump Braves

The Chicago Cubs scored five runs in the seventh inning to dump the Braves, 5-4, but the National League leaders retained their 6½-game lead because the Cincinnati Redlegs whipped the second-place St. Louis Cardinals, 5-4.

The Boston Red Sox defeated the Baltimore Orioles, 4-3, and the Detroit Tigers downed the Cleveland Indians, 5-2, in other AL games while the Brooklyn Dodgers beat the New York Giants, 3-0, and the Pittsburgh Pirates shaded the Philadelphia Phillies, 3-2, in other NL activity.

Howell, a 37-year-old right hander from Bowman, Tex., connected for his game-winning homer after the White Sox had rallied from a 3-0 deficit to tie the score at 3-3 in the eighth. Howell was credited with his fifth win.

Coleman Muffs Throw

Second-baseman Jerry Coleman muffed a force-out throw with the bases filled and two out in the ninth to enable Washington's Bob Usher to score the winning run against the Yankees. Sal Maglie, in his first start for the Yankees yielded three runs and seven hits in six innings.

A two-run single by Chuck Tanner and a two-run single by Dale Long sparked the Cubs' big inning which brought Bob Rush his fifth win and Bob Trowbridge his fifth setback.

Pinch-hitter Jerry Lynch walloped a three-run homer in the sixth inning to give the Redlegs their victory and enable them to tie the NL mark of 10 pinch home runs in a season.

Daley Slams Double

Catcher Pete Daley's run-scoring double in the ninth provided the Red Sox with their winning run and rookie Murray Wall with his third straight win.

Jim Bunning won his 17th game and hit a "double play" grounder that produced three runs on two Cleveland errors as the Tigers handed Early Wynn his 16th defeat.

Johnny Podres pitched his sixth shutout and 11th triumph as the Dodgers mathematically eliminated the Giants from the NL race. Elmer Valo homered and Garl Furillo and Gino Cimoli had two hits each for Brooklyn.

Hank Foiles homered with two out in the sixth inning to give the Pirates the lead and Ronnie Kline protected it the remainder of the way to score his seventh victory compared to 15 losses.

Sivie's Stocks Many Home Items Needed Every Day

It is important in a city and Valley like this area to have a store that is ready to take care of the needs of the householder, for with today's steamed up and better existence living the wants of the modern home owner have jumped.

Well, here in Monessen Sivie's, located at 313 Schoonmaker avenue, Phone MUrray 4-3611, has done a good job of trying to stock on their counters and shelves what would be most needed and useful to the home owners and renters of Monessen and the immediate area.

That they have succeeded well can be attested to by the fact that the patronage at Sivie's has been growing steadily, year after year, and customers are indeed satisfied.

For example, mowers. Here is an authorized repair station for Lawn-Boy Mowers in the entire Monongahela Valley. Hand and power mowers are sold and Sivie's sharpens and repairs all mowers. Now with the long dry spell Monessen has experienced this Summer the area might get a lot of rains that would make the grass grow fast and need more cuttings. Be prepared by having your mower well serviced.

Plumbing service is given by Sivie's and plumbing supplies are stocked. Just Phone MUrray 4-3611 and tell them what you want. This is an important service to any home.

A general line of hardware, paints, wall paper, window glass and household wares can be found at Sivie's and marked at reasonable prices.

Right now is a good time to do that outside painting in late Summer and early Fall and Sivie's can take care of all your paint needs.

Dudas Sunoco Is Equipped to Take Care of Your Car

Your automobile has probably gone through a pretty hard summer, what with the intense heat and perhaps the thousands of extra miles most people do during the nice traveling season, so by all means in a few weeks or so take it to a skilled service station attendant for a check-up.

You'll want to see that it is given a proper lubrication job. Good oils and greases are the life of any car, prevent parts breaking down, save on costly garage bills, and give you better all-around performance.

The same is true when you have old sludge and oil drained from your crankcase and have new oil of the right grade put in. Oil lubricates your engine, the powerhouse of your automobile, and is the lifeblood that makes it run better and last longer.

Buy the best oil and have new oil put in at every one thousand miles. It will pay you big dividends in the long run.

Have the battery checked and re-charged if necessary. Cold weather will soon be hitting this area and you'll want sure starting power.

See that tires are inspected and replaced where needed. Good tires spell better safety.

Dudas Sunoco Service, John A. Dudas, prop., located at 532 Schoonmaker avenue right in the heart of Monessen, will do a good servicing job no matter what kind of a car you own.

Get that famous Sunoco "A to Z" lubrication and have your car serviced here while you go to the bank, the postoffice or do your shopping. It's handy, saves you parking money, and your car will be ready for you when you return.

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, James Barounas, who died one year ago today, September 7, 1956
What would we give his hand to clasp,
His patient face to see;
To hear his voice, to see his smile,
As in the days that used to be.
But in some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more,
In Heaven, that happy life.
Sadly missed by Wife, Daughter, Son-in-law and Grandson

Three Shopping Centers Planned Under New Zoning Ordinance

(This article on zoning for business establishments is the third in a series of six articles on a new ordinance being prepared for submission to Monessen City Council.)

A study of land use in Monessen reveals that business establishments are scattered over all sections of the City, creating conflicting activities in residential area, complicating traffic control and in some cases putting the business itself in an uncertain competitive situation.

Experience elsewhere indicates a trend toward definitive shopping areas in which stores of various types are grouped together for their mutual benefit, with adequate parking to serve the prospective shopper.

A proposed new zoning ordinance for Monessen would attempt over a period of time to solve some of these present day problems and eventually to provide the type of shopping facilities which are now in popular demand.

Commercial Zones

The ordinance proposes two types of commercial zones within which all commercial enterprises would eventually be located. Stores presently existing outside these districts would continue to operate, as non-conforming uses, for periods of between 10 and 40 years, giving the owner sufficient time to amortize the investment he has in the property and business.

Commercial facilities which now cater to residential areas would be located in C-1 neighborhood shopping districts. Three of these would be established: one in the vicinity of Park Plan, one in the area of Watkins street and Grand boulevard, and one near Crest drive and Hoover street. These three districts eventually would supplant all of the "corner" stores in Monessen, as that term is used to describe the business establishments that now dot residential areas.

Located as they would be at the hub of residential neighborhoods, the C-1 shopping districts would be carefully controlled. Uses permitted would be principally retail shops, service establishments like barber and beauty shops, professional offices, gas stations, etc. Size of establishments would be limited to exclude very large stores intended to serve the whole community or the nearby region.

Need Site Plan

To avoid unsightly development near residential neighborhoods, the proposed ordinance requires that before a shopping district is opened a site plan would have to be submitted to city authorities for consideration and approval. In this way the public would be assured that all facilities, parking, landscaping, fences, signs, driveways and locations of buildings would be in the best interests of the neighborhood to be served.

The second type of commerical zone would be the downtown area, called C-2, the central business district. Practically all types of commercial establishment would be permitted in this area. It is anticipated that this area would be the location of all large stores and would continue to be the major shopping center for the City at large and the retail trading area which Monessen serves.

The special parking problems created by business establishments would be treated differently in the neighborhood shopping districts and in the downtown shopping. Off-street parking would be provided privately in the neighborhood districts, while parking would be provided by a combination of private and public resources in the downtown area. This proposal will be treated in greater detail in a subsequent article.

(Monday: zoning for industry in Monessen.)

Loyal Troops Wipe Out Last Of Cuban Revolt

HAVANA (UP)—Loyal army troops wiped out the last pockets of resistance in Cienfuegos today, ending the short bloody revolt in that key south coast sugar port.

James Buchanan of the Miami Herald, the only American newsman to make his way through the army blockade around Cienfuegos, reported that 100 navy mutineers still were holed up on Cayo Loco Island three miles from the city.

He said in a copyrighted dispatch that Col. Jose Fernandez Rey, commander of the Las Villas province military force, sent his troops to wipe out the rebel force.

"He ordered his men to ignore any orders of surrender from the navy unit," Buchanan said.

The revolt began Thursday morning when members of the Cienfuegos naval garrison mutinied and joined civilian followers of rebel leader Fidel Castro to seize the police headquarters and other strong points in the city.

The rebels held the police station until early Friday morning when their resistance collapsed and army reinforcements took over the area.

A government communique said the "disturbances of Cienfuegos have been completely ended." It said 50 rebels and 12 members of the loyal armed forces were killed in the fighting and 13 other persons wounded. Private sources said the toll might reach 200.

Pants Pocket Nest

BROWNSVILLE, Ky. (UP) — Danny Demunbrun is glad there are no ostriches around Brownsville. Danny hung a pair of trousers on a line to dry, and later found that a catbird had made a nest in one pocket and laid an egg in it.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP)—The parents of little Jennifer Lee Barker don't have to worry about calling the doctor if she gets sick. Drs. Jim and Betty Barker are resident physicians at a Memphis Hospital.

Don't Worry if You Have Post-nasal Drip; It's Natural Process

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Don't worry about post-nasal drip. It's a natural process and, in the vast majority of cases, causes no harm.

Because of all that has been written about it, I'm sure most of you are familiar with what I mean by post-nasal drip. But just in case you aren't, the term refers to the mucus that keeps running to the rear of your nose and drains down your throat, often following a cold.

At one time or another, just about all of us have a mucous drip. It's the result of our body's effort to throw out the cold germs.

When the mucous glands work overtime to oust the villainous germs, nasal discharge results. The fact that these glands do work extra hard and extra long is nothing to get excited about. It's customary for nature to produce a greater defense than is actually needed and to maintain this defense longer than is nedeed.

Thus a secretion of mucus, even after you have gotten rid of your cold, is merely a continuation of nature's natural defense output. After all, it took a while for our munitions factories to shut down following the end of World War II. A good many of them are going yet. But that's beside the point.

Of course, other things besides a cold can cause post-nasal drip.

A chief cause is the excessive use of nose drops. Smoking, dust, fumes of various sorts, even change in temperature, can start the mucus flow.

What should you do about this drip?

In most instances, the best advice simply is to swallow it. It won't hurt you.

If it is clear mucus, it is not a bit dangerous to your health. Even if it does contain a few germs, the hydrochloric acid of your stomach will quickly destroy them.

A purulent discharge from the nose, a discharge containing virulent organisms, is quite another matter. Such a discharge probably means you have sinus trouble. And that's a problem for your doctor to handle.

'Numbers' Film On Channel 13 Each Tuesday

A film devoted to the principles of mathematics is being shown at 6 p. m. each Tuesday over station WQED, Channel 13.

Called "Understanding Numbers," the series is taught by Dr. Phillip S. Jones, associate professor of mathematics at the University of Michigan.

Dr. Jones considers the number systems of the Egyptian and Babylonian cultures and demonstrates such pre-machine age calculators as the Abacus, the Counting Board, and the Talley stick. During the series, he explains the fun and fascination of big numbers, fractions, new numbers, and mathematical shortcuts.

Dr. Jones also discusses the Binary system which employes only two symbols; zero and one. He introduces viewers to an entirely different mathematical system called Modular Arithmetic.

The telecourse is presented in a simple, straight-forward style with the help of charts and other illustrative devices. "Understanding Numbers" was produced by the University of Michigan's television department and is distributed nationally by the Educational Television and Radio Center, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Orson Welles' Drama

"The Night America Trembled." Sept. 9 drama on CBS' "Studio One," tells the story of the night in 1938 when Orson Welles' radio drama based on an H. G. Wells novel resulted in a widespread belief that the earth actually was being invaded by Martians. Edward R. Murrow will narrate the show.

In Hollywood—

Mary Hosford Won't Be Unknown Long

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Ask the man in the street, "who is Mary Hosford?" and odds are 100 to 1 you'll draw a blank stare.

But she's the most talked-about newcomer in Hollywood and soon will be as highly publicized as Marilyn Monroe, despite the fact that she's a 31-year-old matron.

Before the year is out Mary Hosford will have become a movie star and authoress. And to put the trimming on the cake, she will also announce her marriage to one of the country's richest socialites.

The picture is "The Missouri Traveler." The book's entitled "The Mary Hosford Cook Book." The millionaire is industrialist — sportsman C. V. Whitney — who also produced the film in which she stars.

Mary, who proudly admits she's 31 and the mother of four youngsters (all under 9), is forming her own company, Mary Hosford Enterprises Inc.

"I've never been so happy, or so busy, in my life," says Mary, her blues eyes sparkling.

"But then I've never led a dull life, and my reactions to all these wonderful things won't throw me.

"It might be different if I were 18 years old. However, I've had time to weigh the values of life and hope to take any future successes gracefully."

A Phoenix housewife a year ago, Mary also sold real estate.

Last summer she encountered Whitney at a supper club. The meeting changed her life forever. He was looking for a leading lady for his film. And Mary, a petite five-feet, three-inches tall and weighing 105 pounds, fitted the bill.

Mary's show business was limited to a gossip program on a Phoenix TV station and little theater work at the University of Iowa. She also was a disc jockey in Kansas City during World War II.

"Now I have a contract with Mr. Whitney for one picture a year," she smiled. "I'll never make movies for anyone else. I haven't enough time. My most important role is playing mother."

Currently ensconced in a 14-room Bel-Air mansion, Mary does most of the family cooking. Her book, which she describes as "an autogastronomy," is loaded with tasty recipes she has gathered during her travels all over the globe, and features autobiographical sketches of herself and family life as a child in the mid - West.

By the time Mary's book is published, her movie released and her marriage announced, busy Miss Hosford's name will be well-known indeed, to the man in the street.

Second in New Radio Series, WCAE Tomorrow

The second in the new series of "Engineering News-Report" will be presented on WCAE tomorrow evening, from 7:30 - 8.

The program, described as "A Radio Compendium of the Highlights of the Week From the World of Engineering and Research", will have another outstanding guest in the Easy Chair.

The Easy Chair features an engineer of distinguished accomplishment or a noted personage allied to the world of science, engineering, technology or research, who talks for five minutes on the subject next to his heart.

This week the guest will be Dr. J. A. Hutcheson, vice president-engineering and research, Westinghouse Electric corp.

In Disney Serial

Audie Murphy will make his TV dramatic debut for NBC in "The Flight," one of the plays on the new "Suspicion" series. It will be on film.

Roofers Accept Challenge

Anyone who has lived through a hurricane or toured an area of hurricane destruction knows that it's a big order when the home-building industry receives a challenge for more wind-resistant construction.

Yet, because of damaging blows to homes by hurricanes and other destructive wind storms across hte nation in recent years, the public is demanding homes that will successfully resist the impact when a severe blow strikes.

One group of manufacturers that has met this challenge is the asphalt roofing industry. Thanks to years of scientific research, home-owners can have roofs of asphalt shingles which will resist even winds of hurricane velocity.

This is important not only to home-owners in the East Coast's hurricane belt but to the rest of the nation as well. Winds of hurricane force — 75 miles per hour and higher — have been recorded in at least 37 states by the U. S. Weather Bureau.

Roofers in all parts of the country use three principal methods of applying asphalt shingles to resist winds:

1. Self-sealing method. Strip shingles with a factory-applied backing of adhesive are applied with roofing nails in the conventional manner. Under the heat of the sun the self-sealing adhesive bonds each shingle tab firmly to the underlying shingle.

2. Interlocking method. Using asphalt shingles with a special locking device — usually tabs which slide into slots — the roofer locks each shingle to adjacent shingles in the course next below. This makes a roof highly resistant to high winds, and a roof which retains good appearance.

3. Hand-application. After three-tab, square butt strip shingles,, the most popular of all asphalt shingles, are applied, a spot of quick-setting asphalt cement is placed under each tab which is then pressed firmly against the underlying shingle. The cement makes a firm wind-resistant bond.

Wind-resistant applications of asphalt shingles have undergone rigid tests in wind tunnels and in actual use, and have survived the severest blows from hurricanes and other storms. Often entire roof assemblies which have been blown down have been found with their asphalt shingles still in place.

Open-end Mortgage Loan Easy to Get

Thinking of re-roofing your home, adding a room, finishing an attic, or making some other major improvement?

If so, it may pay you to find out if you can get an open-end mortgage loan, one of the least expensive and most convenient ways to borrow money for home modernization.

An open-end mortgage is one which enables the home-owner, after he has repaid part of the principal of the mortgage on his house, to borrow more money from the mortgage holder and have this additional advance made part of the original mortgage at the original interest rate.

According to a study by the U. S. Savings & Loan League, lending institutions in 32 states can safely make an additional advance under an open-end mortgage without a new title search.

Other States Liberal

Four states — Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, and Pennsylvania — require a title search but do permit additional advances. The remaining 12 — Delaware, Tennessee, South Dakota, Kansas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Wyoming, Arizona, New Mexico, Idaho, Utah, and North Carolina — have no final legal definition, but court decisions generally are in favor of giving an additional advance the status of the first lien to protect the lending institution.

One reason many original mortgaging institutions favor open end-mortgage loans is that most home improvements, such as a new roof of asphalt shingles or insulating with mineral wool, actually increase the value of the house.

A new roof, for example, protects the house from weather, adding to its lifetime, and the colorful asphalt shingles boost resale value of the house by making it more attractive.

Lending institutions are generally enthusiastic about a home-owner's desire to insulate with mineral wool, since this insulation helps cut down fuel bills, often as much as 40 percent, and the savings can be added to mortgage payments.

For the same reason, lenders favor loans for storm sash which help save heating fuel, make a house more comfortable, and increase its value. Combination storm and screen windows and doors of ponderosa pine are favorites with home-owners because they can be painted to match or harmonize with other exterior colors. Windows and panel doors for all types of remodeling also are available in ponderosa pine from building materials dealers.

Most Homes Are Frame Construction

Despite many new building products of metals and masonry, available to the construction industry, over 83 per cent of all new homes built in the U. S. last year were frame construction, made of wood, says the Bureau of Labor Statistics latest release.

This is up from the previous year.

HOME OWNERS QUESTION BOX

Q. — I plan to build a home along the east coast in an area which has been hard hit by hurricanes in recent years. I intend to have a low-pitched roof which rises slightly less than 3 feet for every 12 feet across. Can I use asphalt strip shingles on the roof?

A. — Yes. A new type of asphalt shingle can be used on roofs with a pitch as low as 2 feet in 12, even in hurricane areas. The shingle seals itself on the roof by means of a special adhesive, and it has been tested to meet the most adverse wind conditions encountered anywhere in the U. S.

Q. — I have a basement in which I would like to install a large food freezer. The only way to get to the basement is by way of stairs from the first floor, but these are so narrow the freezer won't pass through. Is it much of a task to widen these stairs?

A. — In almost all cases, the expense will be prohobitive, because it will mean floor joists must be cut and the whole first floor structure re-arranged. It would be less expensive and more satisfactory to cut through your foundation and install a direct entrance to the basement from the outdoors. This entrance will make it convenient to store hundreds of other bulky items in the basement.

Square Trees Gives Pattern

Many a logger has been heard to say jocularly that nature should grow trees square so lumber could be cut more easily than from the round logs.

The saws cutting across the grain of the wood gives that incomparable beauty of texture and grain which is so prized in woods like Douglas fir, west coast hemlock and western red cedar.

More and more homes are being designed with exposed wood in ceilings and beams, paneled walls and built-ins, the lumbermen point out. Fir, hemlock and cedar provide the ideal natural patterns woven intricately by Nature to give this exposed wood the distinctive character so sought after by architects and homemakers.

Personal Coloring Is Big Factor in Homes

How does your personal coloring — your eyes, your skin — affect your preferences for color in your home?

"Markedly," says Margaret Hargreaves, one of the West Coast's leading home color stylists. "People with lighter eyes and skin prefer colors which are more subdued, while people with dark eyes and complexions like sharp, strong colors."

Physiologically, Miss Hargreaves points out, the reason is that colors seem to register more vividly in light eyes than they do in dark eyes.

As an example, Miss Hargreaves cites large developments in Southern California built in areas primarily inhabited by Californians of Mexican descent.

"From the asphalt shingle roof down, and throughout the houses, sharp colors and bright pastels have been demanded consistently by these home buyers.

"Conversely, studies have shown that light-eyed, light-complexioned buyers in other developments almost invariably choose quiet, monochromatic color schemes."

These buyers, says Miss Hargreaves, also like colorful roofs but prefer colors such as a soft, blended green in asphalt shingles, or deep browns or quiet grays.

"Generally, since most of our color schemes start with the roof', says the color stylist, "this means that other colors, inside and out, will follow the roof color.

"For instance, a deep brown roof would mean a harmonizing beige or a soft yellow on the siding, one of at least 100 shades of brown on the trim, and perhaps an accent in a blend of greens on doors, window boxes, shutters and the like.

"Inside, we'd pick up the yellows and beiges, possibly make th. draperies match the roof, and use touches of an easy-going orange or a soft green for interior accent colors, usually in paintings, a slip cover or two, or bric-a-brac.

"But builders would go broke," Miss Hargreaves says, "if they tried to sell a color scheme like this to most families of Latin-American descent. They want accent colors to be dominating in the scheme, and as long as they don't clash, the sharper the better."

Miss Hargreaves readily admits that some doctors "may want to give me an argument" on her theories, but points out that they are based on years of observation by professionals in the color field.

"Probably the best examples are in Europe where color preferences are sharply defined by national boundaries," says the color stylist. "Spain and Italy are sunny, all right, but they're made to seem even sunnier by natural preferences for sharper colors, while England, northern France and Germany tend to seem gloomy by comparison."

Little Decorating For Bathrooms

Good lawn management means looking ahead. From now until freeze-up in the late fall, grass plants are developing new roots and storing food for winter use reports County Agent Joseph S. Thurston.

For this reason a liberal application of fertilizer on turf is necessary in August.

Use a turf grade of fertilizer having the analysis of 6-10-4, 8-6-4, 10-6-4 or 10-5-5 in amounts of 25 to 35 lbs per 1000 square feet of lawn area.

Thurston suggests making this application of fertilizer from late August to mid-September. By fertilizing at this time, the turf will have ample time to use the minerals in the fertilizer before winter.
